US Marines completed their redeployment from the airport to the Sixth Fleet yesterday, leaving behind about 100 Marines to guard the US Embassy. Marine positions in the commercial area of the airport officially were turned over to the Army's 33rd Battalion.

-- According to press reports, however, Shia Amal militiamen immediately took control of "Green Beach"--the Marines' landing complex next to the airport--and the 6th Brigade of the LAF took over much of the airport and structures formerly occupied by the Marines. [redacted]

The LAF, with US assistance, completed on Saturday the evacuation from the Damur area to Juniyah of 14 M48A5 tanks abandoned by the shattered 4th Brigade. The remainder of the Brigade's equipment at Damur--about 120 trucks and 6-9 tanks--is under Christian Lebanese Forces militia control and, according to militia spokesmen, will be returned to the LAF "as soon as the political situation improves." [redacted]

Increased pressure on Muslim officers within the Army to quit their units and return to their homes has resulted in many Sunni and Shia officers taking "leave" to avoid harm to themselves and their families [redacted]

[redacted] Shia Amal leader Nabih Barri conceded that he has sanctioned the pressure on Muslim officers because he believes that their presence in the Army provides a "cover" for the Army's Christian leadership. By removing this "cover," Barri reportedly expects to reveal the Army as nothing but a Christian militia.

A British businessman was assassinated yesterday in Tehran, according to the British Foreign Office. No details of the shooting are available. The BBC speculated that the shooting may have been a case of "mistaken identity" because the victim was walking near the residence of a French diplomat. There were several attacks on French diplomats in Beirut last year after Iran accused France of siding with Iraq in the Iran-Iraq war. [redacted]
